

INTERNATIONAL COFFEE ORGANIZATION

POSITIVELY COFFEE PROGRAMME

COFFEE AND MENTAL PERFORMANCE

References

- Di Chiara, G. et al. (2001) Effects of caffeine on dopamine and acetylcholine release and on short term memory function: a brain microdialysis and spatial delayed alternation task study. Proceedings of the 19th ASIC Colloquium. Trieste (Italy)
- Jarvis M. (1993) Does caffeine intake enhance absolute levels of cognitive performance? Psychopharmacology 110: 45-52
- Nguyen-Van-Tam, D. P. and Smith, A. P. (2001) Caffeine and human memory: a literature review and some data. Proceedings of the 19th ASIC Colloquium. Trieste (Italy)
- Riedel, W. et al. (1995) Caffeine attenuates scopolamine-induced memory impairment in humans. Psychopharmacology 122: 158-168
- Smith, A.P. et al. (1992) Effects of breakfast and caffeine on performance and mood in the late morning and after lunch. Neuropsychobiology 26: 198-204
- Smith, A.P. et al. (1994) Effect of breakfast and caffeine on cognitive performance, mood and cardiovascular functioning. Appetite 22, 39-55
- Streufert, S. et al (1995) Effects of caffeine deprivation on complex human functioning. Psychopharmacology 118: 377-384
- Van Boxtel, M. P. J. and Jolles, J. (1999) Habitual coffee consumption and information processing efficiency. Proceedings of the 18th ASIC Colloquium. Helsinki (Finland).
- Warburton, D.M. (1995) Effects of caffeine on cognition and mood without caffeine abstinence. Psychopharmacology 119: 66-70

